

Crowd Cheers Revivalist Released in $2,000 Bail

Cheers, cries of congratulations and kisses met Abdul Hamid Suleiman as he stepped out of police headquarters today. The cries came from more than 100 negroes and the kisses from two young women of that race.

Suleiman, who is seventy-seven years old and lives at 143 West 130th street, New York, was arrested yesterday afternoon at a colored revival meeting he was conducting at a hall at Rank and Rutgers street. Sergeant Conlon and Detectives Fallon, Reibold and Moffat served him with a warrant charging assault on a thirteen-year-old girl.

The arrest broke up the meeting. Mohammed Ali, twenty-two years old, of 332 Halsey street, an assistant to Suleiman, also being arrested.

The two were arraigned before Judge Boettner in the Family Court this morning, and bail of $2,000 for examination next Thursday was fixed on each. Suleiman furnished bail. Mohammed is locked up awaiting bail.

As he stepped out of headquarters Suleiman raised his hat in salutation, provoking a burst of cheers from the crowd before the building. One young woman, dressed in vivid green, impulsively kissed him and another, not to be outdone, kissed him twice. Then, forgetting Mohammed Ali still languishing behind the bars, the crowd formed a procession and led Suleiman away.
